

Peter Marber
Aperture Investors

Peter Marber is an award-winning money manager, writer, and teacher specializing in globalization and emerging markets. Since 1987, he has professionally invested billions of dollars for many of the world's largest corporations and financial groups including UBS, HSBC, and Loomis, Sayles & Company.

Marber is currently Chief Investment Officer for emerging markets and founding member of Aperture Investors based in New York. He also teaches at Harvard and has held faculty positions at Columbia, Johns Hopkins, and NYU. Marber has authored more than 100 articles and columns on international finance and globalization and has published six books. He serves on several boards for institutions including Emerging Markets Trade Association, New America, and St. John's College, among others. He received his doctorate from University of Cambridge University.