JIBRAN QUREISHI (Moderator) Standard Bank

Jibran Qureishi is a prominent award-winning economist known for his expertise in African macroeconomics and financial markets research. He is currently the Head of Africa Regions Economic Research at the Standard Bank Group. Jibran provides strategic and operational leadership to a team that has members in multiple geographic locations across the continent. The macroeconomic research is overlaid with fixed income and currency research to produce executable trade ideas in African fixed income and currency markets. In addition, his team's research is aimed at identifying potentially profitable trading opportunities in the growing African Eurobond market.

Jibran features prominently in leading business media and in 2018 was hailed as one of Kenya's Top 40 under 40 professionals. He advises the banks clients and senior management in various in-country offices on Africa strategy. Additionally, he has advised governments and central banks on the continent on public policy matters. He was ranked first by the prestigious Financial Mail top analyst awards for Sub Saharan Africa in 2016, 2021, 2022, 2023 and 2024. His team also emerged victorious in the Johannesburg Stock Exchange (JSE) Spire Awards in 2016, 2017 and 2024 as the best Africa research team. Jibran was also ranked as the number one analyst in 2024 for frontier markets by the Extel Survey (formerly Institutional Investor Research) awards.

KEVIN DALY Aberdeen

Kevin is an investment director on the emerging market debt team at Aberdeen and is based in London. Kevin joined the company in 2007 and oversees the dedicated frontier market bond funds.

Kevin has been an active participant in recent debt restructuring committees and has been active participant in discussions on G20 debt relief initiatives with the Paris Club, IMF, World Bank and the IIF.

Prior to joining abrdn, Kevin spent over ten years with Standard & Poor's in London and Singapore.

TATONGA RUSIKE (BofA Securities)

Tatonga Rusike is Chief Economist for Sub-Saharan Africa at BofA, where he leads macroeconomic research across the region. He has more than 20 years of experience in African economics, sovereign credit, and public finance.

Prior to joining BofA in 2021, he spent nearly a decade at S&P Global Ratings covering African sovereigns and leading major rating actions, including South Africa, Zambia, Mozambique, and Oman. Earlier in his career, he taught economics at Rhodes University and worked in public finance roles at the Western Cape Treasury and Zimbabwe's Ministry of Finance.

Rusike holds a PhD in Development Finance from Wits University and is based in London.

SAMANTHA SINGH-JAMI
Rand Merchant Bank

Samantha Singh- Jami heads the Africa (excluding South Africa) research team at RMB. She also doubles as the rates and credit strategist. In her role as a strategist, she is responsible for producing FX, local debt and sovereign credit research on African economies while her team mainly focuses on fundamental research. She often travels across the continent to interact with policy makers, clients and the broader RMB teams in those jurisdictions.

Samantha joined RMB in November 2022 after about a decade and a half in similar roles at other South African banks.

She holds a B.Comm degree in Economics and completed post graduate studies in business, all in South Africa.

YVETTE BABB
